Tips, advice and some fun facts about our little friends who mean so much to us!

Hello again and a warm welcome to you and your dogs. Speaking of warm, it's been quite a warm summer so far and it's likely that August will be the warmest month of the year. That's great for us but our dogs can really suffer in the heat. So in this issue there's a lot on keeping our dogs cool and comfortable in the hot weather.

Dogs are more susceptible to exhaustion and heat stroke in the latter end of summer. They can't always access shady areas, and their natural methods of cooling down aren't as efficient as ours. Imagine sweating only through your feet and having to breathe harder to lower your body temperature!

Fortunately, it's usually easy to prevent any heat-related troubles. Here are a few tips on keeping them safe and comfortable this August:

1. Before travelling consider if it's really necessary to take your dog with you on a hot day. It might be nice to think that your dog will love playing with you on the beach. But if they have to suffer the heat of the car to get there and back they might just be as happy playing in the garden at home. If you must take your dog along in your car, keep the windows opened wide for fresh air circulation. Dogs literally cook when left in cars so don't leave them there unattended for more than a minute, and never leave them in with the windows closed.

2. Play with them and take them for walks in the early morning or evening when the temperatures are lower.

3. Be sure they always have access to fresh water. If you'll be away from home for a bit, try leaving a few ice cubes in their water dish. This keeps the water cold but is also a treat to those who love chewing ice.

4. Provide a shady or cool area for them, especially if they'll be outdoors. Trees or a canopy gives shelter from sunlight, and a hard surface such as tile flooring can be a cool resting area. If you notice your dog digging lots of holes in the garden this time of year, they're likely turning into the earth for a cool and cosy place to relax.

5. Have them groomed regularly to rid of excess hair and any mats. You may also want to keep their hair clipped, though it depends on the breed and their living situation.

These simple precautions can make all the difference with a dog's comfort and wellbeing in summertime weather. So go on and have lots of fun with them before autumn arrives, but stay on the lookout for anything that could make warm weather a bit easier on them.

! A dog in China has been nursing a kitten along with her own pups. Li Dajie bought the kitten soon before her dog gave birth to a litter and, according to Orange News, the dog and kitten 'quickly became inseparable.'

The dog allows the kitten to nurse from her while the pups are suckling, and the kitten is growing rapidly!

! A couple in West Sussex raised a seagull that seems to think he's a cat. Mr and Mrs Grimwood found the seagull in their fireplace a few years ago and hand reared him because he'd been abandoned.

The seagull eats cat food alongside the Grimwoods' pet cats, according to Orange News, and has become good friends with the felines. However, now that he's older, he's living on their roof with a female.

Why Groomingdales is the Right Choice for You!

What I can do for you!

I'm sure many of you suffer with "bad doggie odour" given the wonderful weather we experience in the UK; the dogs are continually getting wet. I can offer you a quick and convenient solution to eradicate dog odours, giving you more pleasure in cuddling Rover now he smells so fresh!

The hydro-bath is made from high strength fiberglass meaning it is suitable for all sizes from Maltese Terriers to Great Danes. With an in built heating system it has its very own supply of warm water so you have no worries about your dog keeping warm. The spray head produces a unique hydro-combing action that massages and stimulates the skin, so not only is it the most effective way of washing your dog but also provides a therapeutic water massage. This helps with blood circulation, relieves tired muscles and has been found to be beneficial for arthritis sufferers and older dogs. Water penetrates the coat getting right to the skin removing dry dead skin cells, embedded flea eggs and other materials that can be hidden and hard to get rid of, especially for dogs with longer and thicker coats. Your dog and your home will remain doggy smell free for longer so you're friends and neighbours can visit and you'll not be embarrassed about the odour.

Another excellent advantage is that certain treatment solutions for skin conditions or flea prevention can be added to the water during the hydro-bath. This ensures that maximum benefit is obtained from any treatment as the water spray not only gets deeply into the fur but also reaches the skin which is most important for any type of treatment.

Depending on the size of the dog and the condition of the coat, a bath, brush and dry will take approximately an hour to complete, while you sit back with a cuppa and read the paper, knowing your dog is in the best hands just meters from your front door.

Doggy Humour!

A group of children were outside playing together when a fire truck flew past them. In the front seat of the truck was a Dalmatian. The children started talking about the dog's duties.

'They use him to keep the crowds back from the fire,' said one of the children.

'No, he's only there for good luck,' said another.

The third child ended the argument. 'They use dogs,' she said firmly, 'to find the fire hydrant.'

To Shave or Not to Shave

That is the question if your dog's looking miserable in their heavy coat this summer. The answer may surprise you, though.

We often think of a dog's coat in the same way we think of our own coats. We can't imagine wearing a wool coat on a summer afternoon, and so we assume that our dogs must be roasting beneath all their hair.

But, that's not necessarily the case, and the decision to clip all their hair off should not be taken lightly.

A dog's coat protects their skin from the sun and other outdoor elements, while also insulating them against both hot and cold weather. So they may be more susceptible to sunburns, skin cancer, and heat exhaustion if they're mostly outdoors without their coats.

Moreover, the coats of certain double-coated and longhaired breeds are never quite the same after they've been clipped.

That is not to say you shouldn't have your dog trimmed or clipped, though.

A good trimming will remove shaggy hair and, depending on the breed, a full clip can be both stylish and practical. The ultimate goal is to keep them in a well-maintained coat, which promotes air circulation and healthy skin regardless of the hair length or thickness.

Unless a close shave is necessary due to severe matting or a skin condition, it's best to think on these factors and talk it over with your groomer before committing to full coat removal.

A Look at the Basset Hound!

The Basset hound originated in France in the 1500s, moved on to England in the 1800s, and is now one of the most recognisable dog breeds. Its short legs, long ears and sorrowful expression form a classic look that's adored by many.

The Basset hound is second to the Bloodhound in its ability to trail a scent and was bred for tracking small game with hunters.

In spite of their sluggish appearance, they're quite active on the trail and keep their owners moving when taken out for their walks.

Basset hounds tend to get along well with other dogs and are obedient companions. Perhaps the most charming aspect of the breed is its calm and friendly temperament.

But because they love to sleep and are prone to obesity, it's important to take them out often for walks and tracking activities. Monthly grooming is usually adequate for keeping their coats nice and healthy, but they may get into messes when following a scent!

One More Reason to Have a Dog!

People who own dogs tend to live longer and are less likely to have heart attacks than those who do not. And, believe it or not, pet ownership is linked to decreased stress levels!

Recognising Symptoms of Heat Stroke

Taking precautions against the August heat is only half the battle, as some dogs will still overexert themselves or are more susceptible to heat exhaustion than others are.

Large and short-nosed breeds typically have the most trouble coping with hot weather.

If you're out with your dog and they are panting heavily or feel warm to the touch, move them into the shade for some rest. If possible and if symptoms worsen, wet their neck, stomach and armpits with cool water.

The more serious symptoms to watch for include tongue swelling, dry or pale gums, listlessness, vomiting and diarrhoea.

If you suspect that your dog is suffering exhaustion or heat stroke, it's critical that you cool them down and get them in to see a veterinarian as soon as possible. Left untreated, the condition can worsen and is sometimes fatal.

While it's always good to be prepared in case an emergency arises, the most important thing to remember is that prevention is usually sufficient for keeping dogs healthy and comfortable throughout the warmest season.

Breaking the Territorial Bark

Last month's issue of the newsletter contained an overview on breaking problematic barking. As noted there, it's helpful to identify the reasons why a dog barks uncontrollably before attempting to break the behaviour.

One of the reasons a dog may do this is from an urge to guard and protect their territory. This is usually the case when a dog barks relentlessly at people or animals that approach the owner's property.

Territorial barking can be a good thing, of course, as it's comforting to know that your dog will likely scare intruders away. However, if you're unable to make them stop barking when you're welcoming someone to your home, it can be really frustrating.

If your dog does this and you'd like them to stop, try teaching them to 'speak' and 'be quiet.' With lots of tasty treats in hand, invite someone to approach your home and command your dog to 'speak.' Give them a treat for barking, and repeat this exercise until your dog speaks on command.

Practise the 'quiet' command afterward. Hold a treat to their nose while they're barking, say 'quiet,' and give them the treat the second they stop barking. By practising this routinely with positive reinforcement your dog will quickly learn to stop barking when told.
